IIS alumnus brings pride for its Alma Mater

Civil Services is all about hard work, dedication, sincerity and determination and this is where IISians stand out. Along with the students it is a matter of great pride for the institution and a great achievement for crafting another success story for IIS . While acknowledging this IIS celebrated the momentous success of its alumnus Akshat Jain for his outstanding achievement of holding AIR-2 and bringing home the bacon.

The felicitation ceremony was held at IIS Auditorium in the august presence of the school director, Dr Ashok Gupta, principal, Ms Mala Agnihotri, teachers, students and other dignitaries who participated in Akshat's success. He was more than happy to share his journey to success and how he successfully converted his passion and dream into a reality.

The programme started with welcoming ceremony followed by lamp lighting. This was followed by teachers sharing their memories and experiences with the esteemed alumnus. A visual displaying Akshat's school glimpses as well as messages from other IIS alumnus who are distinguished IAS officers filled the air with pride and jubilation.

School Director, Dr Ashok Gupta felicitated the bright alumnus for his success and expressed his heartfelt best wishes for his future. He said that he feels proud to see his students doing great job as Civil Services officers. Principal, Ms Mala Agnihotri said that the felicitation ceremony is just one of the ways to tell that she is proud of her students. The proud IISian, Akshat shared his experience and the journey to becoming an IAS officer with students and teachers. This was followed by an interactive sessions with the curious IISians who flooded him with questions seeking inspiration from him.

All the faculty members of IIS congratulated him at the end of the felicitation ceremony and wished him luck for a bright future.
